RESERVE PRICE GUIDELINES

Reserve prices are, in most cases not made public knowledge. If we publish the "reserve" we may not accept any amount less, (i.e.) if we offer an item and the reserve is $100,000.00 and we publish that fact, we cannot sell it for any amount less. However if we offer that same item and the "unpublished" reserve is still $100,000.00 and we have bids close, (i.e.) $97,500.00 or even $89,500.00 then we can confer with the owning agency and make a decision to accept or reject the offer(s). So, by not publishing the "reserve" the Government has the latitude to make an award at a lesser price than the reserve if we choose.

Thank you for your interest in the GSAAuctions program and we look forward to your continued participation.
